BREAK FREE

Operational processes holding you back?

The race to connect customers to your ultrafast broadband network is on. The network is building out rapidly, and your sales and marketing teams are signing up new customers at an encouraging rate. But there's a good chance that the pre-enablement and installation activities of your field service organization are being held back by operational processes:

Legacy Software Tools

You've managed your field operations with minimal automation to date, but are worried about keeping up with demand, as your current tools and methods don't give you the needed field and back office efficiency.

Deferred Technology Investment

The decision to invest in modern field service automation tools has been put off until now. Your IT organization has a plate full of 'essential' improvements, and you're competing for their time and available budget.

Inefficient Resource Utilization

With the continued retirement of experienced talent, you're nervous about ramping up your organization and are seeking ways to make your current teams more productive to reduce the impact of staffing delays.

FAST TRACK YOUR FIBER ROLLOUT

Introducing the Zinier Accelerator Package

The Zinier Accelerator Package will help you break free from the operational processes that are holding you back.

It's built for today

As an off-the-shelf software solution for fiber pre-enablement, installation, and repair, it can be up and running in a few weeks.

It's built for tomorrow

As your business grows and needs change, you can customize any of your workflows without touching a line of code.

It's built for your budget

Get started at a low entry point that fits within your budget today, and doesn't require additional spending until you start to scale.
